CLOSTER, N. J., Feb. 21.—The Congregational Church at this place has been shaken to its spiritual foundations, and its ecclesiastical existence is in peril, some of its most earnest communists insist, because its pastor, Rev. William Walton, has joined a boating club, and the other night skipped the prayer-meeting and spent the evening in a match game of tennis between his club, "The cheerful Circle of Closter Congregational Church," and some of Jersey City's athletic young Christians, led by another pastor full of vigor and cheerfulness, Rev. J. L. Beddoe.

One family has thirteen votes in the church. It's now the best that the church can do. Elders and Deacons.

Pastor Walton is the third shepherd of the Closter flock in its short history. The others were dismissed by the flockers, having said to them: "They were without families."

They were without families.

Pastor Walton, when he came to Closter, brought a family of eight with him, and when the congregation met together in the church parlor Tuesday night for the avowed purpose of "boozing" the elected tennis player, the votes of the whole church were cast.

It was a stormy evening, and only nineteen members of the church besides the pastor, sixteen women, although twenty-two signatures were appended to a petition that had been addressed to the pastor asking him to resign. Seventeen of these were the names of Valentine's members, among them Eder.

Pastor Walton's signature to these twenty-two alleged signatures was that of an idiot who cannot write; that another was signed by a man who had no name, and that five others were the names of Baptists who had no vote in his church.

That is immaterial, however, for in the end it was the votes of the strong who won.

The folks on the other side of town were by a scratch, though that seems a strange expression to use in a connection that objects to ten pins and in a State where everyone thinks horse racing so wicked.

The nineteen members who came out that evening Tuesday night soon found that there were not enough to count the pastor himself. The Walton men were soon downcast, and the bouncers were correspondingly irritated.

Pastor Walton, wife and true helmate of pastor, leading a procession of seven children, was a perceptible stiffening of their backbone.

Then began a season of speculating in the way of dirt when Pearson gets after it. Everything washable is left without harm. It cleans the house and the finest things in it. It is a necessity in the laundry. It does away with the Rub, Rub, Rub, it is a luxury in the bath. Stick to soap if you'd rather work hard; when ready to be helped try Pearson.

The dominie says: "Two pastors have been sent to Closter with broken hearts. If there are any broken hearts to be broken, mine will not be one of them."

Chicago May Get Prof. Barnard.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—It is reported that Prof. E. E. Barnard, astronomer of Lick Observatory, the discoverer of Jupiter's fifth satellite, who is stopping in the city for a few days on his way East, may accept a position with the Chicago University and have charge of the observatory.

Barnard has been given a vacation for six months and proposes to visit some of the observatories in the eastern part of the country and in Europe.
